

Terrorists Torment The FBI

By ISABELLE HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The FBI seems to have met its match in the new breed of radical leftists who have dominated its 10 "most wanted" list of fugitives for the past year.

The list was expanded to 16 last year in an attempt to speed the capture of "radical terrorists" like H. Rap Brown, who disappeared on his way to stand trial in Maryland on charges of inciting to riot and arson. He made the list May 6, 1970.

Brown was apprehended Saturday night in New York City after apparently participating in a robbery of a West Side lounge, with three other persons. He was shot in the abdomen and now is in a hospital after undergoing surgery.

Another most-wanted fugitive of this type to be caught is black militant Angela Davis, now awaiting trial on a murder charge in connection with an Aug. 7, 1970, courtroom shoot-out in San Rafael, Calif. She was captured in New York City the following Oct. 13.

One More Captured

The only fugitive on the list captured since is Warren David Reddock, 45, a paroled former charged with killing a business associate in Chicago. He was apprehended April 15.

Still at large are nine of the men and women the FBI calls "radical" or "revolutionary" and six old-style criminals.

The first of the new breed to make the list—once regarded as a sign of reaching the "big time" in the gangster world—was Cameron David Bishop, 29, of Pueblo, Colo., on April 15, 1969.

The FBI said Bishop was "a violence-minded college revolutionary" wanted on a charge of sabotage in the dynamiting of Colorado power transmission towers which serve defense plants.

After Bishop and Brown were added, the FBI expanded the list of 16 on Sept. 4, 1970, to include four young men wanted in the bombing of a university of Wisconsin building in which a research worker was killed Aug. 24, 1970. The four, Karleton Lewis Armstrong, 25, his brother, Dwight, 20, Leo Frederick Burt, 23, and David Sylvan Fine, 19, are still at large.

Fifth Woman Added

Bernardine Rae Dohrn, 29, became only the fifth woman ever to make the list when she was added Oct. 14, 1970. The FBI called her "a self-described revolutionary Communist and reputed underground leader of the violence-oriented Weatherman faction of the Students for a Democratic Society."

She is wanted for her part in the 1970 "days of rage" demonstrations in Chicago on charges of unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for mob action, violation of federal antiriot laws and conspiracy.

Two more young women were the last to go on the list a few days later. They are Susan Edith Saxe, and Katherine Ann Power, both 22 and "reputed members of a radical, revolutionary group dedicated to attacking the U.S. military system and undermining police power," according to the FBI.

Saxe and Power are wanted in the slaying of a Boston police officer following a bank robbery Sept. 23, 1970, in which $26,385 was seized from the State Street Bank and Trust Co.

Others on the most wanted list since 1968 or 1969 are Benjamin Hoskins Paddock, 44, a convicted bank robber and prison escapee; Marie Dean Arrington, 38, who broke out of a Florida prison where she was under death sentence for murder; Byron James Rice, 35, wanted for killing an armored car guard during a robbery in Mountain View, Calif.; Taylor Morris Teaford, 36, wanted for killing his grandmother and shooting his sister; and Charles Lee Herron, 34, one of five men sought for allegedly killing a policeman in Nashville, Tenn.
